Donald Trump's defence secretary 'Mad Dog' Mattis warns North Korea of 'effective and overwhelming' response to nuclear attack

By Nick Allen, WASHINGTON; Barney Henderson, NEW YORK and Chris Graham

3 FEBRUARY 2017 • 8:49AM

- Jim Mattis warns North Korea over nuclear attack
- Nikki Haley blames Russia for Ukraine violence
- Far-Right commentator Milo Yiannopoulos evacuated from Berkeley amid rioting
- Trump threatens to pull funding for university
- "Nothing off table" over Iran missile, says President
- Donald Trump warns Israel that new settlements ‘may not help’ achieve peace
- Trump 'blasted' Australian PM over 'dumb' refugee deal
- 'Bowling Green massacre': Kellyanne Conway mocked for using 'alternative fact'

US President Donald Trump's defence secretary warned North Korea on Friday of an "effective and overwhelming” response if Pyongyang chose to use nuclear weapons, as he reassured Seoul of steadfast US support at the end of a two-day visit.

Defence secretaries have long offered assurances to South Korea and Japan that its nuclear "umbrella” will protect them, but Jim Mattis’s statement was perhaps more pointed than most. He made the remarks during an appearance with his South Korean counterpart, defence minister Han Min-Koo.

"North Korea continues to launch missiles, develop its nuclear weapons programme, and engage in threatening rhetoric and behaviour,” Mr Mattis said.

"We stand with our peace-loving Republic of Korea ally to maintain stability on the peninsula and in the region,” he added.

Profile | General James “Mad Dog” Mattis

"America's commitments to defending our allies and to upholding our extended deterrence guarantees remain iron-clad: Any attack on the United States, or our allies, will be defeated, and any use of nuclear weapons would be met with a response that would be effective and overwhelming.”

Mr Mattis’s two-day visit comes amid concern that the North may be readying to test a new ballistic missile, in what could be an early challenge for Trump's administration.
South Korean defense minister Han Min-koo and US secretary of defense James Mattis pay tribute to the victims of the Korean War during a visit to the National Cemetery in Seoul CREDIT: EPA/KIM HEE-CHUL

North Korea, which regularly threatens to destroy South Korea and its main ally, the United States, conducted more than 20 missile tests last year, as well as two nuclear tests, in defiance of UN resolutions and sanctions.

The North appears to have also restarted operation of a reactor at its main Yongbyon nuclear facility that produces plutonium that can be used for its nuclear weapons programme, according to a US think-tank, 38 North.

Mr Han echoed his counterpart’s concern about North Korea's nuclear and missile programmes.

He said they "blatantly threaten" the international community and have created a "severe security situation" on the Korean peninsula.

He described Mr Mattis’s visit so early in his tenure as a warning to North Korea.

In his New Year's speech, North Korean leader Kim Jong-un said his nation was close to test launching an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM).

Mr Trump on Jan 2 tweeted: "It won't happen!" about North Korea's pursuit of a nuclear-tipped ICBM, although his precise meaning was unclear.

The Pentagon has said it would not necessarily strike a test-launched ICBM if it did not pose a threat.

President Donald Trump
Mr Mattis's trip to the region, which will include a stop in Japan, is the first foreign trip by any of President Trump's cabinet secretaries.

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) January 2, 2017

China applauds Trump's granddaughter singing in Chinese
A brief video clip of Donald Trump's granddaughter singing in Chinese is circulating to strong approval on the internet in China, even while some criticised the US president's failure to send greetings for the Lunar New Year.

The clip posted by Mr Trump's daughter Ivanka shows five-year-old Arabella Kushner singing best wishes for the holiday while playing with a traditional Chinese puppet.

— Arabella singing a song she learned for #ChineseNewYear. Wishing everyone an amazing year to come during these days of celebration. 新年快乐！
On Wednesday, Ivanka and Arabella made a surprise visit to the Chinese Embassy in Washington to take part in the festivities, a photo of which landed on the front page of the official China Daily newspaper Friday. Arabella had already drawn considerable attention in China in November when a video clip of her reciting an ancient Chinese poem lit up the internet.

4:14am
Conway refers to "Bowling Green massacre"
Kellyanne Conway has left viewers baffled after referring to the "Bowling Green massacre" in justifying the ban on people from certain countries from entering the US.

The senior advisor to Mr Trump referred to two Iraqi immigrants who were "the masterminds behind the Bowling Green massacre", which led to Barack Obama imposing a six-month ban on the Iraqi refugee programme. "Most people don’t know that because it didn’t get covered," she said.

It is believed she was referring to a 2011 incident in which two Iraqi nationals, who lived in Bowling Green, Kentucky, were indicted for allegedly having ties to IED (Improvised Explosive Device) attacks against US troops in Iraq.

3:29am
Musk to object to immigration order
Elon Musk said he would express his objections to Mr Trump's recent executive order banning people from certain states when he attended a business advisory group meeting with the president on Friday.

Musk said he would attend the meeting. "In tomorrow's meeting, I and others will express our objections to the recent executive order on immigration and offer suggestions for changes to the policy," he said in a tweet on Thursday.
General Motors Co said its chief executive would attend, while Walt Disney Co said earlier Thursday its chief executive would not attend because of a long-planned board meeting.

Others expected to take part include the CEOs of JPMorgan Chase & Co, Blackstone Group LP, IBM Corp and Wal-Mart Stores Inc. Others that are part of the council include PepsiCo Inc CEO Indra Nooyi and Boston Consulting Group CEO Rich Lesser.

Earlier, Uber boss Travis Kalanick said he is stepping down from the economic advisory council following intense public criticism.

2:46am
Washington residents 'sorry' for Trump

A couple of Americans in Washington have felt the need to apologise to Australia for how Mr Trump spoke to Mr Turnbull. The two Washington residents went to the Australian with a couple of signs...

Two Washington residents have come to the Australian Embassy in DC - complete with homemade signs - to apologise for President Trump. pic.twitter.com/q8ydKWWbz8

--- Stephanie March (@steph_march) February 3, 2017

2:41am
Watchdog to review rollout of immigration order

A watchdog agency at the US Department of Homeland Security said it is planning to review how President Donald Trump's immigration executive order to temporarily suspend travel from seven majority-Muslim nations was implemented.

The review of Friday's order was being planned "in response to congressional request and whistleblower and hotline complaints," the DHS's Office of Inspector General said in a statement late on Wednesday.

The watchdog agency would also look at "DHS' adherence to court orders and allegations of individual misconduct on the part of DHS personnel," the statement said. "If circumstances warrant, the OIG will consider including other issues that may arise during the course of the review."

The order, which barred Syrian refugees indefinitely and imposed a 90-day suspension on people from seven predominantly Muslim countries, triggered widespread protests and caused confusion for travelers around the world.

2:05am
Trump off to a bad start, says Rove
Karl Rove, who was senior advisor and Deputy Chief of Staff during the George W. Bush administration, has criticised the way Donald Trump rolled out his controversial travel ban for people of certain countries. In an opinion piece in the Wall Street Journal, headlined 'Amateur Hour at the White House', Rove said the "details of the president’s executive order—as well as the timing and the confusion that accompanied the rollout—are disconcerting".

He concludes:

Some presidents got off to a bad start—think John F. Kennedy and the Bay of Pigs. But Kennedy recovered by learning from mistakes. Mr. Trump and his aides should do the same. Next time, the stakes could be much higher, with graver consequences for the Trump presidency and the country.

1:57am
Iranian returns to emotional welcome
An Iranian man turned away from Los Angeles International Airport under Mr Trump’s executive order barring immigrants from seven Muslim-majority nations returned on Thursday to an emotional welcome from family members who greeted him with California-grown flowers and well-wishers who sang "This Land Is Your Land."

"Welcome to your new home," Mayor Eric Garcetti told Ali Vayeghan as he walked out of an airport terminal.

Mr Vayeghan's family had been waiting to welcome him last Friday at the same terminal when he was detained for several hours by immigration officials then sent back to Iran.

Ali Vayeghan smiles with his stamped passport. He is now a legal permanent resident of the U.S., attorneys say. pic.twitter.com/e8LYoCAgox

— James Queally (@JamesQueallyLAT) February 2, 2017
He was allowed to return to the U.S. after the American Civil Liberties Union filed legal action against the federal government.

On Sunday, U.S. District Judge Dolly M. Gee ruled that Vayeghan had a legal travel visa and had been approved for a green card and that not allowing his return was unconstitutional and would do him grave harm.

"I'm very happy and I'm very grateful," he said Thursday.

1:27am

Nikki Haley blames Russia for new violence in eastern Ukraine

US Ambassador to the United Nations, Nikki Haley, blamed Russia on Thursday for the recent surge of violence in eastern Ukraine and warned Ukraine-related sanctions against Russia will not be lifted until Moscow returns Crimea to Kiev.

"I consider it unfortunate on the occasion of my first appearance here I must condemn the aggressive actions of Russia," Haley said, making her first public remarks inside the Security Council since being sworn in as the United States' representative to the United Nations last month.

'It shouldn't happen, or be that way. We do want to better our relations with Russia. However, the dire situation in eastern Ukraine is one that demands clear and strong condemnation of Russian actions."

Her remarks came amid speculation over new US President Donald Trump's intentions towards Moscow. Trump has praised Russia's President Vladimir Putin and expressed a wish for improved relations between the two countries.
Haley made clear that tensions over the Ukraine would not end soon, including the matter of sanctions slapped on Russia related to the annexation of Crimea three years ago.

“Eastern Ukraine of course is not the only part of the country suffering because of Russia’s aggressive actions. The United States continues to condemn and call for an immediate end to the Russian occupation of Crimea,” Haley said.

“Crimea is a part of Ukraine. Our Crimea related sanctions will remain in place until Russia returns control of the peninsula to Ukraine.”

The United States and other Western powers imposed sanctions on Russia in 2014 over its annexation of the Crimea peninsula from Ukraine and its support for pro-Russia separatists in eastern Ukraine.

Ukraine and Russia had blamed each other for a surge in fighting in recent days that has led to the highest casualty toll in weeks and cut off power and water to thousands of civilians on the front line.

The Ukrainian military and Russian-backed separatists accuse each other of launching offensives in the government-held industrial town of Avdiivka and firing heavy artillery in defiance of the two-year-old Minsk ceasefire deal.

1:24am
Mattis warns of 'overwhelming response' to N Korea attack US President Donald Trump’s defence secretary is warning North Korea of an “effective and overwhelming” response if Pyongyang chose to use nuclear weapons, as he reassured Seoul of steadfast US support at the end of a two-day visit.

"Any attack on the United States, or our allies, will be defeated, and any use of nuclear weapons would be met with a response that would be effective and overwhelming," Defence Secretary Jim Mattis said, speaking at South Korea's defence ministry.

12:05am

Trump warns against more settlements

After expressing wholehearted support for Israel over the past few months, the White House changed tone slightly on Thursday, warning it not to hold off on building more settlements. It said in a statement that Israel’s building of new settlements or expansion of existing ones in occupied territories may not be helpful to achieving peace with Palestinians.

"While we don’t believe the existence of settlements is an impediment to peace, the construction of new settlements or the expansion of existing settlements beyond their current borders may not be helpful in achieving that goal."

It said the Trump administration "has not taken an official position on settlement activity" and looks forward to discussions when Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu meets with President Donald Trump later this month.

Israel has announced more than 5,000 new homes in the West bank since Mr Trump's inauguration.

11:54pm

White House meets Australian ambassador

Following on from Mr Spicer's comments, the White House is trying to smooth things over with Australia after the contentious phone call.

Chief of staff Reince Priebus and chief strategist Steve Bannon met with Joe Hockey, Australia’s ambassador to the US, at the White House on Thursday. The White House says they conveyed to the ambassador Mr Trump’s "deep admiration" for the Australian people.
The president had expressed frustration during the phone call at the weekend over an Obama administration refugee deal with Australia.

Australian Amb to US Joe Hockey met with Priebus and Bannon at WH today, a WH official says.
— Jim Acosta (@Acosta) February 2, 2017

The White House deepened its condemnation of the deal on Thursday, saying Mr Trump was "unbelievably disappointed" in the agreement.

11:48pm
Prime Minister ... Trunbull?
Sean Spicer, the White House press secretary, has insisted Mr Trump has respect for Australia and for its prime minister, Malcolm Turnbull. Unfortunately he repeatedly got the name wrong when making the point, saying Trunbull instead.

Prime Minister Turnbull ... or Trumbull? You decide what White House press secretary Sean Spicer said! [https://t.co/6FNdVGTjJj pc.twitter.com/LUD0wJn4RK]
— ABC News (@abcnews) February 2, 2017

Mr Spicer was commenting after reports of a heated conversation between Mr Trump and Mr Turnbull, in which the president, who had already spoken with four other foreign leaders, told the prime minister "this is the worst call by far".

9:17pm
Gun ownership laws weakened
The House has voted to roll back Obama rule on background checks for gun ownership.

The vote to repeal the regulation passed 235-180.

The vote is part of an effort to repeal a handful of regulations issued in President Barack Obama's final months.

The background checks rule established the criteria the Social Security Administration will follow when forwarding names for the criminal background check system.

Those fitting the criteria have a mental disorder so severe that they cannot work and need a representative to manage their benefits. The administration projected that the regulation would affect about 75,000 beneficiaries.
Gun rights groups and advocates for the disabled supported the repeal effort.

8:35pm
US 'to impose sanctions on Iran'
The United States is expected to impose sanctions on multiple Iranian entities as early as Friday following Tehran's recent ballistic missile test, Reuters reports.

It will be in a way that will not violate the 2015 Iran nuclear deal, sources familiar with the matter told the news agency.

One source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said about eight Iranian entities were to be sanctioned, or "designated" in US legal jargon, for terrorism-related activities, and about 17 for ballistic missile-related activities under separate existing US executive orders. The source declined to name the entities.

7:52pm
Trump welcomes Samsung
Samsung is considering building a factory in the United States for its home appliances business.

Thank you, @Samsung! We would love to have you! https://t.co/r5nxC9oOA4
— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) February 2, 2017

7:33pm
US revises sanctions on Russia's FSB intelligence agency
The US Treasury began allowing US companies to make limited transactions with the Russian FSB intelligence agency.

The White House denied that signaled an easing of sanctions against Moscow, with Mr Trump saying: "I haven't eased anything."

FSB permission or notification is required by Russian law for encrypted devices to be imported. Several American electronics businesses and consulting companies sought the change,

7:28pm
Who is Milo Yiannopoulos?
In brief | Milo Yiannopoulos

7:26pm
President Trump: 'I love Australia'
Mr Trump later offered an olive branch to Australia.
He said: "I have a lot of respect for Australia, I love Australia as a country.
"We had a problem where President Obama said they were going to take refugees. I just said 'Why?' That's why we're in the jam we're in.
"We have some wonderful allies and we'll keep it that way but we have to be treated fairly too."

4:31pm
US-Mexico border wall to be built 'within two years'
US Homeland Security Secretary John Kelly said he hoped to have a wall along the southern US border with Mexico finished within two years.
He told Fox News: "The wall will be built where it's needed first, and then it will be filled in. That's the way I look at it.
"I really hope to have it done within the next two years."
He added he thought funding from Congress for the massive project would come "relatively quickly."

3:46pm
Tillerson says diplomats entitled to their political beliefs
Mr Trump's new Secretary of State Rex Tillerson says America's diplomats are entitled to express political beliefs but "we cannot let our personal convictions overwhelm our ability to work as one team."
Tillerson was addressing employees at the State Department on his first day on the job.
He said it had been a "hotly contested" presidential election and he knew everyone in the department did not feel the same way about the result.
He was alluding to a "dissent cable" signed by hundreds of diplomats criticising Mr Trump's immigration order.
Tillerson said he may make unspecified changes to the State Department but his approach will never be "change for the sake of change."

3:07pm
Schwarzenegger suggests a job swap with Trump
Arnold Schwarzenegger has responded quickly to Mr Trump's taunt, with a video on Twitter.
He suggested a job swap so that people could 'sleep comfortably' with him in the White House instead of Mr Trump.

The National Prayer Breakfast? pic.twitter.com/KYUqfJkHJE
— Arnold (@Schwarzenegger) February 2, 2017

3:03pm
Iran responds to US over missile test
Iran said US comments on its recent ballistic missile test were "repetitive, baseless and provocative", state TV quoted Foreign Ministry spokesman Bahram Ghasemi as saying.
"Instead of thanking Iran for its continued fight against terrorism, the American government is practically helping the terrorists by claims about Iran that are baseless, repetitive and provocative," Ghasemi said.

2:35pm
President Trump says 'don't worry about tough phone calls'
Speaking at the National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, Mr Trump said: "The world is in trouble but we're gonna straighten it out. That's what I do, I fix things.
"Believe me, when you hear about the tough phone calls I'm having don't worry about it, just don't worry about it.
"They're tough, we have to be tough, its time to be a little tough folks.
"We're taken advantage of by every nation in the world virtually. Not gonna happen anymore."

2:31pm
President Trump says 'Pray for Arnold Schwarzenegger'
Speaking at the National Prayer Breakfast President Trump urged people to pray for Arnold Schwarzenegger over poor ratings on The Apprentice.
He was introduced by Mark Burnett, the British creator of the show. Mr Trump said: "When I ran for president I had to leave the show. They hired a big, big movie star, Arnold Schwarzenegger, to take my place.
"We know how that turned out. The ratings went right down the tubes. It's been a total disaster and Mark will never, ever bet against Trump again.

"I just want to pray for Arnold Schwarzenegger if we can for those ratings."

2:12pm
Fight Club - The view from Australia

In the first edition of The West Australian tomorrow: pic.twitter.com/oaeWhgYn3d
— The West Australian (@westaustralian) February 2, 2017

2:10pm
German foreign minister to meet Rex Tillerson

Sigmar Gabriel, the German vice-chancellor and foreign minister, will today become the first world leader to meet with Rex Tillerson, the new US Secretary of State after flying into Washington.

Mr Gabriel, who is also expected to meet Mike Pence, the vice-president, will be the first German representative to meet with the Trump administration.

“I hope to have a direct and personal exchange, as well as to offer friendship and trust,” Mr Gabriel said.

But his visit is widely being seen as a fence-mending mission after Angela Merkel’s government got off to a frosty start with the new president.

Here are six things you need to know about the visit.

1:51pm
More scenes from Berkeley last night

WOAH. Protestors blocked car in Berkeley. Driver ran them over. Sped off. #Milo pic.twitter.com/GeVVPhP3jd
— Michael Bodley (@michael_bodley) February 2, 2017

1:45pm
Berkeley blames 'agitators' for violent protests

In a statement Berkeley said: "The violence was instigated by a group of about 150 masked agitators who came onto campus and interrupted an otherwise non-violent protest,

"We condemn in the strongest possible terms the violence and unlawful behaviour that was on display and deeply regret that those tactics will now overshadow the efforts to engage in legitimate and lawful protest against the performer’s presence and perspectives.”

The university said some people were attacked and six were treated for injuries.

1:29pm

Malcolm Turnbull: 'I stand up for Australia'

The Australian prime minister said he would "stand up" for Australia and the refugee deal President Trump described as "dumb" was still on.

He said his telephone conversation with the US leader ended "courteously".

Mr Turnbull said: "It's better that these things, these conversations, are conducted candidly, frankly, privately.

"I can assure you the relationship is very strong. The fact we received the assurance that we did, the fact that it (the refugee deal) was confirmed, the very extensive engagement we have with the new administration, underlines the closeness of the alliance.

"But as Australians know me very well - I stand up for Australia in every forum, public or private."

In a statement the White House said: "The president is still considering whether or not he will move forward with this deal at this time."

1:13pm

Melania Trump will move full time to White House in summer

Melania Trump will move into the White House this summer, Claire Cohen writes.

The First Lady will settle in Washington with the couple’s 10-year-old son Barron and has already assumed her duties, according to her senior adviser Stephanie Winston Wolkoff.

Ms Wolkoff told ABC News, “Ms Trump will be moving to DC and settling into the White House at the end of the school year, splitting her time between New York and DC in the meantime.”

The First Lady currently lives in New York, where she remained after her husband’s inauguration as the 45th President of the United States on January 20.
In November last year, Donald Trump confirmed that his wife would stay in their Trump Tower penthouse with the couple’s 10-year-old son Barron and would join him in Washington, “right after he finishes school”.

12:46pm
Trump: Iran ‘formally put on notice’
President Donald Trump claims Iran was on the verge of collapse until the US gave it a "lifeline" in the form of the Iran deal.

The president has tweeted "Iran has been formally PUT ON NOTICE for firing a ballistic missile."

He added, "Should have been thankful for the terrible deal the U.S. made with them!"

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) February 2, 2017

Trump was repeating comments made by National Security Adviser Michael Flynn,

Trump also tweeted, "Iran was on its last legs and ready to collapse until the U.S. came along and gave it a life-line in the form of the Iran Deal: $150 billion."

— Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump) February 2, 2017

Flynn said Wednesday the "Obama administration failed to respond adequately to Tehran's malign actions" and put Iran "on notice," without elaborating on what actions may be taken.

12:24pm
Trump threatens to pull funding from UC Berkeley
Donald Trump threatened to pull ‘federal funds’ from the University of California at Berkeley after it cancelled a far-right commentator’s appearance due to protests.

Protesters had hurled smoke bombs, broke windows and sparked a massive bonfire, prompting officials to call off the event.

But Mr Trump said the university was suppressing "free speech."

The decision came two hours before Wednesday's talk by Milo Yiannopoulos (yuh-NAH'-poh-lihs), a polarizing editor of Breitbart News, after some 1,500 people had gathered outside the venue.

But officials said it was a smaller group of protesters dressed in black and in hooded sweatshirts that showed up as night fell to break windows, throw smoke bombs and flares, and start the raging blaze outside the building.

"This was a group of agitators who were masked up, throwing rocks, commercial grade fireworks and Molotov cocktails at officers," said UC Berkeley Police Chief Margo Bennet.

A vandalized Bank of America office is seen after a student protest turned violent at UC Berkeley during a demonstration over right-wing speaker Milo Yiannopoulos. Credit: Stephen Lam/Reuters

Bennet said police determined at that point they couldn't guarantee security, canceled the event and evacuated Yiannopoulos from the building.

There were no immediate reports of arrests or serious injuries, she said.

Prior to the burst of violence, hundreds of peaceful demonstrators carrying signs that read "Hate Speech Is Not Free Speech" had been protesting the appearance for hours.

As the evening wore on, crowds of protesters cleared away from outside the building. By 8 p.m. the crowd had thinned and at least 100 protesters that remained danced to a brass band playing music and marched off campus and into a main avenue.
A light stand is set on fire during protest on the University of California-Berkeley campus.

CREDIT: REX/SHUTTERSTOCK

Yiannopoulos, a 32-year-old right-wing provocateur, is a vocal supporter of President Donald Trump and a self-proclaimed internet troll whose comments have been criticized as racist, misogynist, anti-Muslim and white supremacist. He was banned from Twitter after leading a harassment campaign against "Ghostbusters" actress Leslie Jones.

His visit to Berkeley was sponsored by the campus Republican club. The university has stressed it did not invite him and does not endorse his ideas but is committed to free speech and rejected calls to cancel the event.

"The event has been cancelled," Yiannopoulos posted on his Facebook page. "I'll let you know more when the facts become clear. One thing we do know for sure: the Left is The Berkeley College Republicans said its "constitutional right to free speech was silenced by criminals and thugs."

"Their success is a defeat for civilized society and the free exchange of ideas on college campuses across America," it said in a statement.

The university, which had requested assistance from police in nine UC campuses, sent a notice to all students earlier Wednesday that warned of crowds near the student union, where the 500-seat, sold-out event was scheduled.

Yiannopoulos' talks have sparked protests, shouting matches and occasional violence at stops around the country. A man was shot and wounded at protests outside his Jan. 21 talk at the University of Washington.

Rowdy protests at UC Davis Jan. 13 prompted campus Republicans to cancel his appearance at the last minute. His final stop was supposed to be UCLA on Thursday but the invitation was rescinded, making Berkeley his grand finale.
Scientists discover 'Zealandia' - a hidden continent off the coast of Australia
16 Feb 2017, 5:21pm

Donald Trump insists presidency is 'fine tuned machine' after extraordinary 75-minute press conference in which he attacks press
17 Feb 2017, 5:09am

Church of England gay marriage vote thrown into chaos after members 'get confused and press wrong button'
16 Feb 2017, 2:37pm

Ivanka Trump 'gazing' at Justin Trudeau - photo sparks memes
16 Feb 2017, 5:02pm

Britain will attempt to offset Brexit cost with €150 billion worth of European Union assets
16 Feb 2017, 11:32am

News latest

Care cuts may have fuelled largest rise in death rates for 50 years
17 Feb 2017, 6:01am
The Archers Paradox: with all those cakes and pork pies, why don't Ambridge residents get fat?
17 Feb 2017, 6:00am

Europe must spend more to support Nato – the alliance is as vital as ever
TELEGRAPH VIEW
★★ 17 Feb 2017, 6:00am

Samsung heir Lee Jae-yong arrested amid bribery allegations
17 Feb 2017, 5:45am
Donald Trump insists presidency is 'fine tuned machine' after extraordinary 75-minute press conference in which he attacks press
17 Feb 2017, 2:15am

British tourists injured in Norway speedboat accident
17 Feb 2017, 1:38am
Jeremy Corbyn is now less popular than Michael Foot was at the same stage of his leadership
17 Feb 2017, 1:13am

Suicide bomb attack kills at least 75 at Pakistan shrine
17 Feb 2017, 1:11am

Brexit talks will take longer than two years, says Jean-Claude Juncker
17 Feb 2017, 1:03am
Britain’s top judge weighs into local planning battle over basement extension
17 Feb 2017, 12:46am

Glacial 'aftershock' spawns Antarctic iceberg the size of Manhattan
17 Feb 2017, 12:38am

Harmful plastic pellets found on three quarters of British beaches
17 Feb 2017, 12:01am
Online pharmacies illegally handing out antibiotics are fuelling rise of superbugs
17 Feb 2017, 12:01am

Donald Trump's pick for national security adviser turns president down 'over dispute about staffing'
16 Feb 2017, 11:55pm

Trump raises spectre of 'nuclear holocaust' amid questioning over Russia
16 Feb 2017, 11:28pm
Man arrested at Heathrow Airport on suspicion of preparing terrorist attacks
16 Feb 2017, 11:26pm

Donald Trump asks black reporter if she knows members of the Congressional Black Caucus and says: 'Can you set up a meeting?'
16 Feb 2017, 10:43pm

Mark Zuckerberg sparks speculation about political future with 5,800 word global manifesto
16 Feb 2017, 10:37pm
Theresa May hails relationship with France as its most senior politicians call for UK to be 'punished' for Brexit
16 Feb 2017, 10:30pm

Nicola Sturgeon facing rates revolt led by leading hotelier and SNP member
16 Feb 2017, 10:24pm

If you would like to add a comment, please register or log in